Now, I want to replace the "null" value with the second value from the list. How can I do that? A: You can use a Series.replace with an option to specify multiple cases `df['x'] = df['x'].apply(lambda x: [df['abc'].loc[int(x)].values if x in x.split(',') else 'null' for x in x.split(',')])` ) Blue M.E. Designed for the “Active Weekend Participant”, this high-performance footwear is equipped with a series of innovative features, ensuring comfort and a secure fit during your athletic endeavors. The material used in the upper of this shoe is significantly lighter than its predecessor, providing an optimized fit without compromising durability. Additionally, the insole is supplied with a soft layer of foam, which prevents constriction of the foot, an important issue for those training or racing in the morning.Q: What are the different forms of 知 have in Chinese? I'm confused as to what is the difference between 知, 知道, and 知道, and any of them used for mathematical formulas? A: A formula is a collection of concepts or rules used to describe something. I'd describe a Chinese formula (or more generally formulaic Chinese) in two parts: Цитаты are literal quotations of a passage from an ancient book. Примеры are examples of the combination of the concepts described in the formula in an actual situation. 知 can mean both formulas and examples, but is generally used for the latter. But then the word 知 is used in 3 different ways here in Chinese. 知 | 知道 | 知道 | 知道 知 is the most frequent use in this context, it can be translated as: know the rules know the set of rules that can be applied in this context know the examples know the examples that can be used in this context know the sentences that can be used in this context know the sentences that can be used in this context know the sentences that can be used in this context etc f678ea9f9e
